Rickenbacker Mentioned At the Wailing Wall Creating 8 Billions Harnessing the Ocean

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN WELCOMING the French fliers enthusiastically yesterday, President Hoover mentioned "Byrd, Rickenbacker and the rest."

It is refreshing to hear Rickenbacker mentioned, proving that men who flew in the war are not quickly forgotten.

Their flying was unlike modern race flying, as different as the performance of a hawk from that of a carrier pigeon.

When Rickenbacker went up his plane or another had to crash. Time after time he went up, and time after time he brought down the other planes. This he did more often than any other American flier.

He has remained in the background amid all the praise of peace flying. The public should not let him stay there.

THE NATIONS, with few exceptions, stand with their foreheads pressed against the wailing wall of diminished prosperity. Side by side they bemoan the downfall of a great boom, asking each other: "When do you think things will improve?"

They ought to know that real business is not done by those that gather at the other walling wall, of great antiquity. It is done by those that remain at home and attend to business.

Mr Cromie of the Vancouver Sun thinks the main trouble is "refusal of European bankers to recognize the necessity of restoring silver as a one to twelve world money token with gold.'" There are in the world six billion ounces of silver, now worth only two billions of dollars. If bankers would do their duty, Mr. Cromie says, the six billion ounces would be worth 10 billions of dollars, and the purchasing power of China, India, Mexico and other countries now on a silver basis would be increased by eight billions, almost as much as we lent to our dear allies.

THERE IS NO DOUBT that cutting down by more than 50 per cent the value of money used by more than half the people on earth is one cause of trouble

If Mr Rockefeller himself suddenly found that half his money was counterfeit, he would have to economize

We live in a world that needs better management in many directions, and Mr. Cromie proves it. The public debt of China is only about $1 per inhabitant The public debt of Australia is $1,000 per individual If China and Australia were both in danger of bankruptcy, Australia probably would go overboard, without the help of Great Britain, which, by the way, has been acting more like a stepmother than a real mother.

Bankers, European and American, will say: "We shall be much obliged if Mr. Cromie will show us how to restore the value of silver." W. J. Bryan tried it on a 16 to 1 basis and failed. Uncle Sam tried it with wheat, putting in nearly $100,000,000, and wheat dropped 25 cents. 'Supply and demand' is an obstinate reality.

GAS PRESSURE FAILS IN CITY AT NOON TODAY

Two-Hour Investigation Fails To Reveal Cause of Interruption.

ALL MARION IS AFFECTED

Officials of Company Here Unaware of Trouble Until Besieged by Phone Calls.

After two hours of investigation along the main line east of the city, workers for the local office of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. at 2:30 p. m. had not yet discovered the cause for the sudden stoppage of the pressure, which went off at the noon hour.

Entire City Affected

Meanwhile, the entire city was without gas service while workers were tracing the reason for the sudden paralysis which hit the system.

The pressure department of the company at its Columbus headquarters was called for assistance in locating the reason for the stoppage, but at 2:30 p. m. had not yet discovered the cause, according to Charles Sechrist, company official.

Possible danger of gas explosions when the service is renewed was expressed in some quarters, while housewives who are in the midst of canning activities were forced to call a halt until the pressure comes on again.

Dining Service Disrupted

Hotels and restaurants which rely on gas for preparing meals had their dining service disrupted.

Metal pots from which The Star's news pages are cast were being heated this afternoon with a coal fire which was quickly substituted when the gas jets suddenly went out.

Consumers of the fuel in all sections of the city besieged the company offices on West Center street with telephone inquiries, the first indication company officials had that something had gone wrong with the service.

BUENOS AIRES MOBS DRIVEN OFF STREETS

City Quiets Down After Night of Rioting; Irigoyen Arrests Ordered.

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 9—Streets of the capital were cleared of gun brandishing mobs today, only after seven persons had been killed, 50 wounded, and pillage had ruled for several hours. The rioting was the aftermath of a revolution which overthrew President Hipolito Irigoyen.

The disorders were precipitated by troops which mistook a minor disturbance for a counter-revolution against General Jose Evaristo Uriburu and his ministry, who were inducted into office yesterday afternoon.

Hipolito Irigoyen, fallen president of Argentina, all members of his cabinet, and Irigoyenista members of congress were today ordered arrested and held incommunicado.

At 9:15 this morning, Buenos Aires was still half stunned by the shock and the tragedy of the misunderstanding last night.

The citizens, at first appearing cautiously on the streets, began to take stock of things and realize for the first time that revolution had not broken out.

Provisional President Uriburu issued a statement ordering the surrender of all arms in the possession of private persons within 12 hours. Martial law was threatened.

Restrict Immigration To Help Employment

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—President Hoover announced today that the state department had moved to alleviate the unemployment situation by tightening the immigration restrictions upon aliens who might become public charges.

Consul generals who issued visas for immigration to the United States have been instructed to inquire more carefully into the financial status of the applicant.

Warnings Given Out to Civil Service Workers

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Federal employes working under civil service rules have been warned that any undue participation in election campaigning may mean the loss of their jobs.

The civil service commission said today warnings against political activity on the part of classified employes of the service were being posted in all federal buildings.

ERIE CONDUCTOR SPENDS 50 YEARS WITH COMPANY

W. S. Brumbaugh, East Center Street, Soon To Complete Half Century on Job.

W. S. BRUMBAUGH

He sees well without the aid of spectacles and his hearing is unimpaired. Unusually active, he continues to lead a life of work, even when not on railroad duty.

FEW men can hum the strains of "I've Been Working on the Railroad" with a more perfect right to do so than W. S. Brumbaugh of 731 East Center street. An interview with Brumbaugh at his home here, between runs on Erie trains as conductor, reveals that he has been in the railroading game within a few weeks of 50 years, and that, at 73, he is by no means past the active days of his life.

Brumbaugh's fiftieth year with the Erie railroad will be rounded out Oct. 23. The last 20 years have been spent almost entirely on the Erie run from Marion to Salamanca, N. Y.

Outside of his interesting history, Brumbaugh holds an exceptional record of not participating in any train accidents while in railroad work, or having a single passenger in his charge injured. He has never missed a day of work because of illness.

A hearty appearance and ready laugh deny his 73 years.

Outside of his railroad work,

MAINE G. O. P. WINS

White Elected to Senate; Governor Gardiner Gets Second Term.

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9—Maine stood fast in the Republican column today after its "off-year" biennial election in which Representative Wallace H. White, Jr., who has served the second Maine congressional district for 11 years, was advanced to the seat in the United States senate now held by Senator Arthur R. Gould.

Governor William Tudor Gardiner was named for a second term and three Republican incumbents in congress and Donald B. Partridge of Norway, who contested for White's seat, were elected.

White rolled up a majority of 30,000 over Frank H. Haskell of Portland, his Democratic opponent, carrying each of the 16 counties.

Gardiner, who two years ago swamped Edward C. Moran, Rockland Democrat, with an 80,000 majority, was able to poll but 16,000 over Moran yesterday. It was the smallest majority for a Republican governor since 1918, when Carl E. Milliken squeezed ahead of Bertrand G. McIntyre with 5,000 votes.

The vote totaled 147,000, the smallest since 1920, when women were granted suffrage, and com-

STEAL TIRES, TUBES FROM WALDO GARAGE

Loss Placed at $1,200 in Report Made to Sheriff by Proprietors.

Burglars broke into Michels' garage at Waldo last night and stole almost an entire stock of tires and tubes, valued at $1,200, according to a report made today to Sheriff John J. Francis by W. C. F. Michel and Robert Michel, proprietors.

The robbery occurred between 10:30 p. m. yesterday, when the garage was closed for the night, and today at 7 a. m., when it was opened for the day, the Michels told Francis.

A truck evidently was used in the robbery, according to Francis, since the tires and tubes were too bulky to be taken in an automobile.

Between 35 and 40 tires and 65 and 70 tubes were stolen by the thieves, who also broke into both the cash register and the safe, neither of which contained any money. Account books in the safe were removed but were not injured.

None of the loss is covered by insurance, according to the owners.

Threat of Truant Officer Brings Girls from Trees

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 9—Beaten by school, two tired little girls climbed down from the trees where they had been sitting for almost two months and staggered about on unsteady legs last night.

They were Anna Kosik, 14, and Naomi Worden, 12. Anna had been up 1,306 hours and Naomi just 10 less.

Both had declared they would keep on sitting until the opening of school and the threats of the truant officer were something else again. Naomi capitulated first and went over to her rival's home to watch her descent.

ENGINE BLAST TAKES 5 LIVES

Explosion Occurs in Yard of Reading Railroad at Philadelphia.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 9—At least five men were killed and a dozen injured today in the explosion of a pusher locomotive in the Reading railroad roundhouse yard at Third street and Erie avenue.

The dead: John Biemiller, roundhouse foreman; John Kelly, inspector; Frederick Spangler, engineman; Crawford Dunseath, car shopman; James P. Smith, car shopman.

The blast let loose a detonation that was heard throughout the entire neighborhood. For a few seconds after the explosion chunks of metal fell like rain about the yards and employes scurried to shelter. Some of the bodies were blown 15 to 20 feet in the air and landed on a nearby embankment.

It is a rule to inspect all locomotives each morning.

The pusher had been brought out on the turn table and had been taken off again but stopped about 100 feet away. Spangler discovered something wrong with the injector and called the roundhouse foreman. A number of other men gathered about the engine and while the examination was in progress the explosion took place.

TWO MARION M. E. PASTORS ARE RETURNED

Rev. C. E. Turley and Rev. W. Martell George Sent Back to Epworth and Wesley.

STUDENT TAKES ASBURY

Assignments for Delaware District Included in List Released Last Night.

Dr. C. E. Turley and Rev. W. Martell George, of Epworth and Wesley M. E. churches have been returned to Marion for their second year's service. Assignment of pastors came last night following a closing session of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal church conference at Oxford in which the church adopted a resolution opposing all candidates for public office who advocate modification or repeal of the prohibition laws and frowned on another motion dealing with birth control.

There were several changes in the Delaware district affecting churches near Marion. Rev. L. R. Wilkins, pastor of the LaRue church last year was sent to the West Mansfield church and Rev. C. A. Hughes was appointed to his place. Rev. Hubble of the morral church will be succeeded by Rev. George Schertzer. Rev. D. N. Kelly, assigned as pastor of the Bellefontaine church was formerly a Marion minister.

Albert Slack of Pearl street, who leaves Wednesday for Ohio Wesleyan university to take up the study of the ministry, was appointed supply pastor of Asbury M. E. church in west Marion. He is a member of Epworth M. E church

Dr. Jesse Swank, former pastor of Epworth church and superintendent of the Dayton district, has been assigned as pastor of the Central M. E. church at Springfield. Dr. Swank is succeeded by Dr. F. F. Fowler. Dr. B. L. George who succeeded Dr. Swank and was in turn followed by Dr. C. E. Turley, was reappointed superintendent of the Hillsboro district. His home is at Wilmington. Dr. H. E. Armacost of Delaware was reappointed Deleware district superintendent.

Rev. G. A. Whitlock, former pastor of Wesley M. E. church was reassigned as pastor of the Convoy M. E. church at Convoy, O.

The Ohio conference, which was in session at Oxford all of last week, failed to recommend that it follow the actions of other church bodies in favoring birth control in certain cases. According to the Associated Press report, a storm of protest from many delegates re-

LOSS $1,500 AS FIRE BURNS AUTO, GARAGE

Short Circuit in Wiring Blamed by Officials for Starting Blaze.

Fire destroyed a truck, a garage and damaged the residence of Ray M. Snyder at 872 Jonesborough street shortly after 8 p. m. yesterday. Damage was placed at $1,500 by Fire Chief T. J. McFarland.

A short circuit in the wiring of the truck parked in the garage is blamed for the fire. Explosion of the truck's gasoline tank before firemen of Company No. 2 arrived made control of the flames more difficult.

The heat became so intense that the Snyder home was threatened. Windows on one side of the house were broken by heat, and curtains in several rooms were ignited. Damage to the house was estimated at $300.

The truck and garage were owned by Snyder.

DIVER UNDER WATER 26 HOURS RESCUED

Veteran Underwater Worker Caught by Pilings in Lake Pontchartrain.

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9—Captain Nick Danese, 62-year-old marine diver, was rescued, alive, shortly before 1 p. m. today after being trapped in 22 feet of water since 11 a. m. yesterday when he was caught under a city pumping station on Lake Pontchartrain while repairing a leak. One hundred men, including four other divers, effected the rescue.

Intermittent jerks on air hose told rescue workers that he still was alive.

Two hundred Negroes worked last night, aided by searchlights, to build a dam to divert water from the lake and release the pressure that gripped the diver.

Danese was caught while trying to stop a leak under pumping station No. 2 of the Jefferson drainage district. He located the leak, but at the same time another developed that loosed a swirling torrent from Lake Pontcartrain, and hurled him against and between a set of pilings.

The diver was wearing a helmet, but did not have on the usual diver's suit, and instead of having his lifeline tied around his body, was holding it in his hand. The rushing water tore the line from his grasp, and he was helpless except for his contact with the upper world by means of his air hose.

Other divers assisted in the attempted rescue, said that if an effort were made to pull Danese from between the pilings by the air hose, water would rush into his helmet

EXPECT 25,000 AT 1930 FAIR

Finishing Touches Placed on Exhibits Today for Three Big Days Coming.

Indications in the initial session of the 1930 Marion county fair this afternoon were that more than 25,000 persons will flock to the fairgrounds in the next three days to be entertained by a program of fair attractions that has never been exceeded in Marion county fair history.

Fair board officials were jubilant today as close to 2,000 persons hustled themselves about the fairgrounds arranging the most numerous and attractive exhibits and displays ever seen here.

Rodeo Is Feature

A wild-west rodeo that will feature all sessions of the night fair, beginning tonight, has established itself in the center field. Its two-hour programs will be given in front of the grand stand each night at 8 p. m.

Racing will feature the afternoon programs. Stables are crowded to capacity, and two display horse barns have been drafted into racehorse stable service to accomodate entries. Between heats, rodeo performers will give riding exhibitions.

All exhibits will be hotly contested, Secretary Carl Sifritt said today. Much prize-winning livestock and poultry in the blue ribbon class at the Ohio State fair has been established in the livestock barns.

All stock exhibits will exceed last year's exhibits in number with the exception of sheep and poultry.

EXTRADITION PAPERS ISSUED ON GOVERNOR

Pennsylvania Asked To Return Ohio Couple Held at Monessen.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9 — Gov. Myers Y. Cooper today issued requisition papers on the Governor of Pennsylvania for the extradition of Robert Brown and Florence Brown, his wife, who are under arrest at Monessen Pa., on charges of grand larceny.

They are alleged to have stolen 63 compensation checks, with a total value of $2400, from the offices of the Ohio industrial commission, several days ago.

The couple's apprehension follows a search of three states by authorities.

Brown receives compensation from the commission. When he last went to the commission offices to draw his monthly check, he is said to have taken all of the compensation checks payable to people with the initial (A).

The couple then proceeded to cash the checks in the counties in which they were payable.

10-YEAR ELECTRIC ORDINANCE READY FOR COMPANY O K

Proposed One-Mill Tax To Increase Funds for City Expenses Fails To Carry; Proposal Defeated in Spite of Warnings of Curtailed Program.

GAS FIGHT AGAIN COMES BEFORE MEETING

TEN-YEAR electric rate ordinances for domestic, commercial, industrial and street lighting were passed by city council last night. The vote in favor of the ordinance as submitted at the last meeting of council, was unanimous excepting one.

The rate schedule, to be effective in 30 days after its acceptance by the C., D. & M., is considered the second best in Ohio in cities comparable in size with Marion, officials say. A rate clerk of the state utilities commission told Mayor L. Don Jones and City Solicitor Carter Patton several weeks ago that the proposed rate schedule for Marion was "very attractive" and that the rates were lower than those of practically all Ohio cities except Marysville and Springfield, which are given identical low rates.

Domestic Unchanged

The domestic rate remained unchanged, although W. G. Slack two weeks ago said the schedule was not satisfactory to him, as the small consumer was not given any reduction from the old rates in effect here.

The new domestic schedule calls for a 75 cent minimum charge with the first 40 kilowatt hours at eight cents, the next 20 at five cents and all above that at three cents. The old schedule specified the first 200 kilowatt hours at eight cents after a 60 cent minimum, with a sliding scale of reductions for all above 200 kilowatt hours. The new rate represents a reduction as a whole, but not to the consumer using less than 40 kilowatt hours a month.

Traffic Lights Cheaper

Reductions varying from negligible amounts to sizeable figures feature the new rate ordinances. Street lighting has been made slightly cheaper in the new ordinances, and a reduction said to make possible the saving of $20 a month on city traffic lights has been embodied in the street lighting ordinance.

Councilman Slack, who recently opposed passage of the domestic rate because it did not favor the small consumer, was excused from voting last night by his request. All other members of council, except L. E. Starr, absent, approved the measure.

Although the rate contracts have not received the final signature of company and city officials, and will not be effective until approved by the company, there is little possibility that the ordinances will be rejected by company officials, as they agreed to all rates before they were embodied in the proposed ordinances

ONE-MILL LEVY TURNED DOWN

Council Halts Proposal To Ask Special Tax for City Expenses.

A one-mill levy proposed for operating expenses of the city was definitely rejected by council last night. A measure which would have placed the one-mill levy on the ballot this fall failed to get the necessary vote to pass it to the second of three readings required by law.

The levy was virtually rejected by council at a previous meeting when it refused to bring up the proposed levy in open meeting. Officials asked council to reconsider their action on the levy, but without results.

Councilman W. G. Slack, Mayor L. Don Jones and Safety Director T. E. Sonnanstine took the floor in favor of the one-mill levy before the measure was put to a vote. All urged that without the levy, city activities must be curtailed, and asked council to let Marion'ites decide by their vote whether they want the present program of the city continued or reduced.

"Whether the city will have funds to continue its present police and fire force and continue to burn its street lights is a question too important to be decided by council," Councilman Slack said. "If people of Marion want these things continued, they should be allowed to say so by voting in

Gas Fight Again Before Council

City council last night ordered its clerk to ask the state utilities commission by letter how soon a settlement of the Marion gas fight can be excepted, when the rate fight was brought up for discussion in the open meeting.

A copy of the letter was ordered sent to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper in the hope that official may be able to urge early action of the commission.

Several persons interested in the gas fight appeared in the audience at the council meeting last night to urge a settlement with the gas company as the only means of terminating the rate fight.

E. M. Tharpe, assistant general manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., again urged an immediate settlement of the fight to enable company workmen to begin work on a proposed new line to Green Camp. This line, Tharpe claims, is needed to furnish the city with adequate gas this winter. The line cannot be built unless the company is granted a 60 cent rate here to finance the construction of the line, he says.

Wilson Tway, of the Wilson-Bohannon Co., lock manufacturers, told council "we want gas and we want it now," when he took the floor in the gallery of the council chamber. He said the big question was to assure Marion will have plenty of gas this winter, and that council apparently could not do that without granting the 60 cent rate asked by the company.

That the gas rate fight will continue for another five years before courts and the utilities commission if not settled before that time by council was the prediction made last night by Hoke Donithen, attorney for the gas company. He also said the rate asked by the company seemed fair.

Ohio State Freshmen To Find Burdens Lightened

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—The burdens of Ohio State university freshmen will be lightened this year by the elimination of the intelligence test requirement for about three-fourths of the class, it was announced today. Only students who have taken the intelligence test in some Ohio high school during the past year will be examined during the freshmen week, Sept. 24, to Sept. 29. It is estimated that three-fourths of the incoming freshmen have already been tested as only 15 city and two village high schools in the state do not use the test.

According to university officials high schools not using the intelligence test include Cincinnati, Akron, Canton, Alliance, Marion, Marietta, Dover, Elyria, Lorain, Bedford, Cleveland Heights, East Cleveland, East Liverpool, Shaker Heights, Shelby and Struthers.

On the Outside

CAMP RICHARDSON, Cal., Sept. 9—Other nations' troubles are not gloated over by us, but it does seem good to be able to read the revolutions in Argentina, Peru, Brazil and not read where "American marines have landed and have the situation well in hand."

If Mr. Hoover does nothing else but keep our army and navy at home, we can forgive him for not giving us rain, lower taxes, and an inflated stock market.

Won't it be wonderful if we ever live to see the day when any country can have its own revolution, and even a private an congenial war with a neighboring nation without uninvited guests?

Addison Bain Collects Pictures, Work of Beaver

An interesting display of beaver work pictures from northern Michigan by Addison Bain of Wallace street will be placed in the store window of the Turner hardware store on East Center street, in the near future. The display will include photographs of the cuttings, circle photographs of the cuttings, dam and beaver house and also a number of the chips cut by the animals.

The specimens were taken from a 6,000 acre game preserve with the permission of the acting ranger. Mr. Bain was assisted by Derril DeLong of Grand avenue, a member of the camping party.

The animals once plentiful and found in nearly every stream or river from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic circle, are now almost extinct, Mr. Bain found, and are being furnished every protection by the government.

The beaver home and dam are located far back in a dense forest a great many miles from civilization, and the men experienced great difficulty in getting to the location.

The original width of the stream dammed by the beavers, which has been photographed by Mr. Bain, was scarcely more than 10 feet, with a depth of less than 18 inches, while at the present time the dam reaches more than 100 feet and holds a body of water covering several hundred acres and at places has a depth of 10 feet. The back water reaches far up the stream.

Gnaw Down Trees

A second colony of beavers is located about a mile above the colony visited by Mr. Bain and Mr. DeLong, and already a dam is being built and a home is under construction. The beavers first cut the trees and trim the branches which are cut to fit the requirements and then dragged over land and water to the dam or home. Leaves and mud finish the work and in no place is the dam more than a few inches above the water. Leaves mud are used exclusively to regulate the flow of water.

Another curio brought home by Mr. Bain is an old-fashioned "full stock" rifle which was presented to him by Rev. Simon Greensky, with whom he has had a close friendship for more than 15 years. The gun had been in the Greensky family for more than 100 years.

Miss Elsie Sorrow Sets New Parachute Jump Record.

By The Associated Press

TORONTO, Sept. 9—Undaunted by the experience of dangling helplessly from the wing of an airplane 9,000 feet in the air, when her parachute fouled, Miss Elsie Sorrow made a second leap and today claimed the Canadian women's jump record.

The first time she went up and leaped yesterday her parachute caught on the wing of the plane. Pilot William Van Sickle saw her plight and Perry McGovern, the observer, crawled out on the wing of the plane and rescued her.

After landing Miss Sorrow decided to make another attempt. This time she landed at 5,000 feet. This jump exceeded the women's Canadian parachute record by several hundred feet, but was unofficial.

The flames started from a defective flue. Mrs. Blue was burning paper in the furnace at the time. The loss is covered by insurance.

Opera Fails; Miniature Golf May Be Substitute

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Shades of Patti, Melba and Caruso! The Auditorium theater, long the aristocratic home of opera and the better things of cultural life, is being turned into a miniature golf course.

Opera never was a paying proposition. The auditorium now is in the hands of a receiver. Bonds for $834,000, issued 40 years ago, are understood to be due and payable. Miniature golf may be the answer, the receiver, R. Floyd Clinch, believes.

The plan is to have a six-hole course in the Foyer, an 18-hole course in the main floor circled by the once famous "diamond horseshoe" of boxes, and with the replica of a country club overlooking the course from the stage.

Far from it, the pontiff spent a busy Sunday discussing outstanding political developments in various parts of the world with the Papal Nuncio, particularly the South American situation.

Sunday evening, on advice of his physicians, he took an hour's automobile ride in the Vatican gardens.

Brown Makes Report on Boy Scout Summer Camp

Executive Declares Season Just Closed Most Successful in History of Camp John A. Owens; New Equipment Added: Recommendations for Future Work Made.

One of the best summers ever enjoyed was the report made by Walter C. Brown, scout executive of the Harding Area to Charles Isely, chairman of the camp committee of the area on the work at Scout Camp John A. Owens, south of the city. This was the fifth annual camp report and described in detail the work accomplished at the camp.

One hundred and thirty-three scouts from 15 troops all over the area and three staff members camped at Camp Owens during the summer. There was an increase of 22 per cent in scout enrollment over last year and a decrease in the cost per scout per week of $1.81.

Makes Recommendation

Brown recommended that the committee do a small amount of work necessary to finish stoning the swimming pool, continue landscaping around the pool and make the camp tract a state game refuge. Among other recommendations he included a plan to make some enlargements of winter quarters and install a heating stove so that week-end camping and winter camping may continue throughout the year.

Brown would also establish a Michigan lake outing for the camp life guards as an annual affair; establish a camp savings system for scouts; and develop further the "Indian Village" project.

In the report of the work done this summer it was revealed that the camp road was completed, the pool partly stoned, new swimming accessories installed, a bell tower erected, and scenic footpath started around the pool with a new "stage" and sun dial on it.

The activity report showed that 18 hours a week were given to scout instruction. All non-swimmers except two boys were taught to swim. The largest class on record was qualified in the swimming merit badge and life saving badge —16 in each.

Three Honor Courts

At three courts of honor the following badges were awarded: tenderfoot, five; second class, eight; first class, eight; star, five; life, four; eagle, one; merit, 64.

The pre-camp jamboree was attended by every troop in Marion county and was declared the most successful ever held. The second period campers were given a day activity by Charles F. Smith, expert in scoutcraft from National headquarters. The Rotarians' annual visit was closed by an historical pageant which was also given at the third court of honor. Half the life saving class was able to enjoy a week's outing at Stony Lake, Mich., after the closing of camp.

Health of scouts at the camp was excellent, only minor accidents marring a perfect record. Four cases of "summer epidemic influenza" was recorded.

New equipment added includes hot water plumbing and electric refrigeration, new diving tower, spring boards, two boats, and two canoes. The lodges are now equipped complete with mattresses and steel cots. All camp buildings were treated with preservative stain. A gift of 96 folding chairs for the dining room and the equipment for an open-air theater was made by Mrs. John D. Owens.

The camp is still open and is being used by a large number of scouts daily under the supervision of Scoutmaster Harold Williams. Week-end scouting was done by more than 470 scouts during the past year.

Red Cross Plans Exhibit for County Fair Week

Chapter Workers To Occupy Two Tents on Grounds; To Maintain First Aid Station and Help Veterans with War Claims.

An unusual variety of services will be furnished at the Marion county fair this week by the local Red Cross chapter, according to announcements today.

Two tents between the art and vegetable halls will be maintained as Red Cross headquarters during the fair. One tent will be devoted to exhibits and first aid work, the other to a rest station.

To Aid Vets

World war veterans throughout the county may learn full details about a recent amendment to the soldiers' pensions act effective July 3 and may file application for this pension, if eligible, at the Red Cross headquarters during the fair, according to Mrs. U. E. Hootman, acting chapter executive.

This service will be maintained for the benefit of veterans in various parts of the county who otherwise would not have an opportunity to file their claims. To be eligible for the pension, the veteran must have a 25 per cent permanent disability, but the disability does not have to result from army service.

Discharge papers must be presented at the Red Cross headquarters before applications for this pensoin can be made, according to Mrs. Hootman.

First aid service will be available during fair sessions at the Red Cross tent. Nurses in charge of Miss Florence Spaulding, supervising nurse, will be available for this work and will be assisted by Boy Scouts. Ambulance service will be furnished by local firms.

Nurse in Charge

The Red Cross exhibit will be in charge of a nurse, who will be available for consultation on child welfare and maternity work. Considerable literature on maternal welfare and other phases of health work has been prepared for distribution at the fair.

Local physicians have been requested by Miss Spaulding to register at Red Cross headquarters when they enter the fairgrounds, providing they are willing to offer their services in case of an emergency.

Boy Scouts will remain at the headquarters at nights during the fair to guard the exhibits and provide first aid.

As fine gold refined—

THE NEW PACKARD EIGHT

WE MOST cordially invite you to come in and look over the new Packard cars now on display at our showrooms.

You will find them as fine gold refined—as one of the world's finest cars made still finer.

A Wide Choice of Beautiful New Models

The new Packard Eight includes more notable improvements and refinements than any Packard of recent years. It is available in thirty-two beautiful models ranging in price from $2385 for the ever-popular Standard Eight Five-Passenger Sedan to $6075 for the finest Individual Custom creation. (At the factory.)

Improved carburetion and manifolding have increased the power. With added power, performance, especially in traffic and at the "red light", has been bettered. The advantages which only a four-speed transmission can give have been retained, with the transmission converted to the "short-shift" type. Longer and softer springs and new shock absorbers provide more riding comfort. An entirely automatic lubrication system now takes the human element out of daily chassis care and prevents the long life resulting from fine engineering and precision manufacture.

Bodies made in Packard's own factories are the finest in every way that Packard has ever offered. Traditional appearance has been retained and beauty of line refined. Interiors have been beautified and made more luxurious. New color combinations have been provided.

Thirty years of building for the most discriminating clientele has taught the Packard Motor Car Company what such a clientele demands. And year by year—and again this year—new luxuries, new refinements and new improvements have been added.

An Investment in Luxurious Transportation

Today when nearly everyone is thinking in terms of investment instead of speculation, and buying more carefully, we ask you to view refined and improved cars—cars without a single speculative or untried feature. With Packard the car has always been greater than any one feature. You could not buy, expecting to keep your car four or five years, if it were otherwise.

We shall be delighted to have you visit our showrooms and, as our guest, you will not be urged to buy. You will be consulted everywhere and shown attention in return for your own business in calling.

Since the flight over of Coste and Bellonte, attention has been widely attracted to the prediction of George Washington, made in a letter written in 1774 to Major General Chevalier Louis Lebique, in which the writer declared: "Our friends at Paris in a little time will come flying through the air, instead of ploughing the ocean, to get to America." Possibly Washington knew what he was talking about also when he warned us against entangling alliances.

Wheat Surplus Due to Science.

In his address opening its annual meeting, held this year in Bristol, President F. O. Bower, of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, told the delegates how much the science of botany has done and is doing to meet the food demand of mankind. As other sciences have worked for man, so has botany. In the last thirty years, he said, the application of science to plant life had prevented the fulfilment of at least one prophecy of a great calamity to the human race. He referred to the prediction made by Sir William Crookes in 1898, the then president of the British Scientific association, that unless something was done to prevent it before 1931, there would be a wheat deficiency sufficiently great to cause widespread starvation.

Stirred by the prediction of Sir William, the scientists got busy and through experimentation discovered processes in the production of fertilizers and made such progress in extending the northern limits of wheat growing that today there is not the slightest danger of the world suffering from lack of wheat.

There have been, of course, grain famines in recent years in China and Russia, and there are at present in both these lands, but responsibility for these famines can not be held against the scientists and scientific methods of production, but to the people of the two countries, the former torn by civil wars, anarchy and brigandage and the latter a sufferer from the most despotic government the world has ever known.

As a matter of fact, the scientists may far better be held responsible for an over-supply of wheat than for a lack of it, and there is ample ground for holding that, had it not been for the progress made by science in perfecting fertilizer and in discovering processes and developing grains by which the world's wheat belts were extended to the north in the Northern hemisphere and to the south in the Southern, there would not be the wheat surplus which exists in the world today.

The County Fair.

It was announced about this time a year ago that this year's county exposition would be considered in the light of a test to determine whether the people of Marion county wanted the county fair to be continued or abandoned.

As is generally known, the county fair has been falling behind for some years, with the result that the county, through its commissioners, has been making good deficits by advancing the necessary funds to the agricultural board. It was this situation that brought about the suggestion that the fair be abandoned and the fairground utilized for other purposes.

Under these circumstances, the people of the county have it in their power to determine what shall be the future of the fair. If they no longer want it or are indifferent to its fate, their failure to support it with their patronage will signify that it is no longer of interest to them. If they turn out this year and support the fair as it so long was supported, it will signify that they wish it to go on as a representative showing of the products and wares of the county.

Without self-glorification, Marion county may make claim to having given patrons in the past the best fairs in this section of the state; best in stock, poultry, agricultural, nursery, industrial and commercial exhibits and best in its speed events.

The fair management announces that this year's fair will prove an exception to the rule only in that its exhibits will be more numerous and comprehensive than those of its predecessors, the people of the county seemingly having striven, by the number and quality of their exhibits, to make it the classiest exposition in the history of the county and one deserving more appreciation than any which has gone before.

Accepting the announcement at its face, the fair should be given the financial encouragement and support that it deserves. As a matter of fact, it will have to be if it is to be retained to the county as a going county institution. The attendance will determine the issue. Every ticket turned in at the gate will be a vote for its continuation, and enough so cast to make it pay expenses will guarantee future fairs. The failure of such attendance will indicate that county fairs are no longer of interest to the citizenship of the county.

"One Killed and Two Hurt in Student Riot in Buenos Aires," reads a headline over a story from that Argentinian city. It's possible the college youths of Latin-American lands otherwise employ some of their time, but their chief occupation seemingly is rioting.

Because his father was French born, the French government holds that Maurice Dornier is a deserter as a result of having failed to respond to the call of the colors in 1914, despite the fact that he was born in Germany of a German mother, and refused him a visa to enter France on the DO-X which was scheduled to stop at Havre enroute here. Following so closely the Hearst incident, it's next to impossible to avoid the suspicion that the fact that the war is over has wholly escaped the attention of the Paris government.

If It Has To Be War—.

The end of the primary contests is in sight with only Wisconsin, Massachusetts and New York standing in the way before emergence into the clear after September 16. Today Louisiana, Washington, Vermont, New Hampshire, Colorado and Arizona will be eliminated, or, to put it more properly, certain candidates for nominations therein will be eliminated.

Maine, lead-off state in the election finals, went to the polls Monday, to determine how the country will go in November. As was expected, the results of the early election in that state hint at a Republican victory, but Maine, even like other prophets, may be proved false. Conflicting with the assurance to be derived from Republican victory in Maine, unfortunately, is a proverb of national politics that the party in control at Washington always sustains losses in the congressional elections which occur midway in a presidential term. Should losses by any chance be great enough to permit a Democratic gain of fifty-three seats in the house and ten seats in the senate, thereby assuring an absolute Democratic majority in both houses, then Maine would be discredited as an indicator.

Ohio, which has not seemed to take as much interest in its primary as, for instance, Louisiana, where there has been an excess of scandal and nose-thumping, is interested in hearing that Senator Fess, chairman of the National Republican organization, intends making the state a battlefield in the struggle for control of congress. There is, of course, every reason for adopting such a course. Senator-Chairman Fess would be discredited if he did not do well in his own state.

The fighting, of course, will be heaviest around the senatorial nominees, Roscoe C. McCulloch and Robert J. Bulkley. Chairman Fess, a dry, would be doubly affronted were Senator McCulloch, also a dry, to lose to the Democratic wet candidate. Bulkley, so it may be assumed that the promise to make Ohio a battlefield is not an idle nor a vain one. There is a vital issue at stake. Even President Hoover has been drafted to make a speech in Cleveland, the enemy's stronghold.

If it really has to be a war, it can not get started too soon. After all, hand-to-hand combat is infinitely more satisfactory than sitting around waiting for shells to explode in the midst of an artificial calm. If it has to be war. Senator Fess has given his promise that it has to be, and the "big guns" may be expected to rumble up any minute.

Editorial Opinion.

A WARNING TO AVIATORS.

Two officials of the national air races, Major Schroeder and Major Reed Landis, both experienced fliers, emphasized in interviews in the Daily News the other day a warning which all aviators should heed. It is a warning which concerns not only the safety of the fliers themselves but, more important, the safety of the public on the ground.

The recent ten days of racing, maneuvering and stunt-flying at Curtiss-Reynolds airport demonstrated the marked advance of aviation in many ways. How much it contributed to the feature of aviation that most needs development—the element of safety—is a question.

Executed by experienced pilots who have enjoyed the best possible training, with machines specially built, braced and reenforced for the purpose, the most brilliant and most difficult performances in the air looked simple and easy. They looked so simple, indeed, as to be a dangerous temptation to overambitious, inexperienced fliers. Majors Schroeder and Landis point out that stunts have no commercial value even when performed by specialists, and they admonish all fliers not properly trained and not provided with suitable machines against attempting them.

Even the training of stunt specialists and their specially-designed planes failed in some instances at the races to avert fatalities. Friends of the dead fliers were able to point out lessons of value to aviation learned from their fate, but even that cold comfort can not be gleaned from disasters resulting from the mistakes of the poorly-prepared. Such accidents can serve only to dampen popular confidence in air travel and thus to retard the advancement of aviation.

A consideration that should be emphasized, however, is that novices who attempt aerial acrobatics, especially over or near crowds, endanger not only their own lives, but the lives of others. And there is no thrill to be had from flying that justifies incurring that danger.—Chicago News.

Lottery and Government.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

In spite of the strong strain of Puritanism in the early population of northeastern Ohio, it was once proposed to operate a lottery to raise funds for the improvement of navigation on the Cuyahoga and Tuscarawas rivers. It was, however, never carried out.

The fact that there was a large volume of trade between the lakes and the southern part of the state waiting the improvement of this route appealed to the strong business sense of these New England people. Both the Cuyahoga and Tuscarawas rivers were clogged with logs and the seven-mile portage path between them was badly in need of improvement. It was estimated that with a fund of about $12,000 all this needed improvement might be made.

An appeal was made to the legislature and in 1807 that body authorized such a "drawing." The Cuyahoga and Muskingum navigation lottery was organized. It proceeded with the preparation and sale of tickets, the drawing to be held in Cleveland the first Monday in January, 1808.

There being considerable expense in connection with this to be taken care of in addition to the prizes which must be paid out of the proceeds, it was proposed to sell the 12,000 tickets at five dollars each.

The grand capital prize was to be $5,000. Then there were two second prizes of $2,500 each. After this there were to be 3,400 prizes of $10 each.

For some reason the drawing was not held. Probably it was a case of the old New England conscience finally getting to work. Not all the tickets were sold, and possibly slow sales due to opposition to the method of raising money for the admittedly essential purpose had something to do with it.

Facts About Peritonitis.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

All the cavities of the body are lined with a delicate membrane. There is one membrane, called the peritoneum, which lines the abdominal and pelvic cavities. In these cavities are located the stomach, pancreas, liver, spleen, bladder, kidneys, intestines, and, in a female, the reproductive organs. Inflammation of the peritoneum is called "peritonitis."

This inflammation may be of a general character and involve a large area. This is a serious condition. Or the trouble may be confined to only a small portion of the membrane lining. In that event there is less pain tenderness and tenseness of the muscles.

The prominent symptoms of peritonitis are severe pains in the abdomen brought on at the slightest touch. The patient can get relief only by lying on his back, or propped up with legs drawn up. This position relieves the pulling of the muscles of the sensitive abdomen. The breathing is shallow because of the tenderness. There is rapid pulse and a fever.

There are many causes for this condition. A perforating wound of the abdominal wall is very likely to cause inflammation. Rupture of a pus-filled appendix or of the gall bladder is almost always followed by peritonitis. Certain female ailments are accompanied by it.

Ulcer of the stomach or intestines which results in perforation of the abdominal wall is a common cause. Very often, when there is a puss-forming infection in the stomach, bowels, gall bladder or womb, peritonitis may result.

The first intimation that such a condition is present is a sharp, cutting pain, apparently in the intestine. The victim may have nausea and vomiting. Usually there is great swelling of the abdomen from the gases that form in the intestines. Likewise, there is a drum-like rigidity of the abdominal muscles.

The disease comes suddenly and develops very rapidly. Usually in three or four days or a week it reaches its climax.

Should one of your household be stricken with symptoms such as these a physician should be called at once. In the meantime the patient should be propped up with the legs drawn up and the shoulders raised. Then keep the patient perfectly quiet until the doctor arrives.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Glozel Mystery.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

One of the most extraordinary controversies in the history of science was precipitated, not long ago, by the spectacular discovery of a great cache of singular objects of alleged antiquity. In a field near Glozel, a tiny hamlet some fifteen miles from Vichy, a cow one day slipped into an unsuspected hole. A young boy, Fradin by name, on investigating, discovered that the hole led into an oval pit full of striking-looking objects—bricks, tablets, vases. The discovery attracted the attention of one Dr. Albert Morlet, a surgeon of Vichy and an amateur archeologist. Excavations at Glozel brought to light many more buried objects, which were described by Dr. Morlet in a great number of articles in the famous French magazine, the Mercure de France.

Dr. Morlet has acquired many objects of great interest, but the great majority of them are now stored in a small building called the Musie de Glozel or Glozel museum. The museum may be visited at an admittance cost of two francs—a few cents in American money. On shelves around the walls and in very primitive glass cases standing on the floor are displayed a most fascinating and heterogeneous collection of strange objects.

Here are vases, tablets, engraved stones, ornaments, pendants, harpoons. The clay tablets are maked with graven signs giving the appearance of alphabetical symbols. Some 136 characters have been distinguished, representing every letter of the alphabet except the letter B.

A short time after the discoveries were made, suspicion arose that the whole affair was a colossal hoax. Scientists began to array themselves on one side or the other; and a terrific controversy ensued. The bitterness of the argument almost surpasses belief. France was torn asunder by the issue; it soon spread to other countries. Scientific reputations were tarnished; the whole matter became a choice joke for the French comic papers. But the thing has passed beyond that stage now, and many distinguished scientists are now ranked as pro-Glozelians.

It is exceedingly difficult to realize how a hoax, on such a huge scale as this, could have been perpetrated without discovery. Who could have manufactured all these strange objects? Where and when could they have been made? Already some 5,000 objects have been excavated. No such find, in abundance comparable to this, and in such a small area had been discovered hitherto. The entire population of Glozel is twenty-nine. It seems inconceivable that this great number of objects could have been fabricated without discovery, quick and sure. Already the controversy has been going on with growing violence for six years; yet no evidence has come to light pointing to the author or fabricator of the alleged fakes.

An international commission was appointed at the meeting of the International Anthropological congress at Amsterdam to investigate Glozel. The findings of the commission were unanimous that the articles are for the most part of recent manufacture, planted in the ground by some party or parties unknown. Dr. David Riesman of the University of Pennsylvania evidently shares the views of this commission. And yet, six months after the commission's visit to Glozel, Dr. Morlet called together a committee of twelve men, including Reinach among other distinguished names; and this committee pronounced unanimously in favor of Glozel! One of these men, Dr. Foat, a London scientist, says: "If the finds of Glozel are not authentic, it is equally necessary to consider as false all that I have seen in museums between London and Constantinople." —Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

THE ARGENTINE revolution rolls on successfully. If there are any objectors, they say nothing. The new president is obeyed.

You will learn without surprise that Europe blames the revolution on the United States. In Rome, the Fascist newspaper, Il Tevere says South America's trouble is imitating the United States, its Constitution and its centralizations of power. Also "the famous Monroe Doctrine" is a disturbing factor.'

If it were not for that doctrine, Japan might have half of South America today, and Germany the other half.

But we can afford to let that go, provided we do not let the Monroe Doctrine go.

He is said now to be acquiring control of the Diamond Match company here in the United States, and stockholders in the International Telephone & Telegraph company are interested, or should be, in the fact that Kreuger is reaching out for control of telephones in a dozen different countries.

Fate of Americans in China in Doubt

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The capture by Communist forces of Shansi, a city in Hupeh province, China, reported to the state department late yesterday, left in doubt the fate of American citizens known to have resided there.

Four Americans were reported safe aboard Japanese vessels, but their identity was not disclosed. Whether more were in the city at the time it fell to the invaders on Sept. 5, could not be ascertained. Department records list as Shansi residents Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Zimmerman, of Alton, Ill., and one child, and Miss Gertrude Simon, of Zachow, Wis. She was connected with the Evangelical Lutheran mission.

French Fliers Carry Tribute to War Ace

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte carried a tribute to a fallen ally airman on going aloft in their ocean-spanning Question Mark at 10:17 a. m. (Marion time) enroute to Curtiss Field, Long Island.

It was a wreath of dahlias to be dropped over the Philadelphia municipal airport as a mark of respect for Major John O. Donaldson, war ace, killed in a crash there last Sunday. A note by Coste was attached.

They paid a courtesy call with the "Question Mark" at the naval air station, across from Bolling field, the army post at which they landed on arriving to meet President Hoover.

restaurant concession is held by the Green Camp Baptist church.

Grange exhibits this year will number nine, two more than ever before, and will present an interesting array of farm produce and examples of grange activity.

Exhibitors of farm machinery, radios, refrigerators, automobiles and dozens of other articles have packed the space in the immediate rear of the grandstand, and to the south of that structure. These exhibitors, most of them in tents, easily outnumber those of previous years.

Unique in the list of art hall exhibits is that of Addison Bain of Wallace street, who is showing nearly 70 antique firearms. He will conduct this booth especially for Marion county school children and has offered to explain the interesting history of each piece in his collection. His exhibit will be shown for the first time this year by special request of the fair board.

Judging in most departments will be done Wednesday, that Thursday and Friday crowds may see the winners.

City police and Boy Scouts will direct traffic and the parking of automobiles on the grounds. Ambulance and first aid service will be available between the art hall and the vegetable hall, a short distance northwest of the grandstand.

HURRICANE RELIEF WORKERS HAMPERED

Food Riot Suppressed by Troops; U. S. Sends Airplanes with Supplies.

By The Associated Press

SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 9—Furnishing of food and water to Santo Domingo's stricken thousands today became a problem of increasing importance to national and Red Cross authorities.

Soldiers of the Dominican Guardia, with United States sailors standing by, suppressed a food riot yesterday at one of the wharves where relief supplies were being unloaded from the United States destroyer-mine sweeper Grebe.

More than 100 persons watched until the supplies had been placed on the wharf and then rushed the laborers. Soldiers held off the rioters while speakers assured the crowds that the rations would be distributed as soon as possible. Most of the crowd had not had a meal since Wednesday, when the hurricane struck the city.

DIRT FLOORS UNSANITARY

Many of the older residences still have dirt floors in the basement, or wooden platforms over the excavation. This is not only an unsanitary condition, but also an expensive one. Dirt floors hold moisture which breeds microbes. Dirt is also tracked up to the main living floor where it grinds into the floors and rugs with resulting cleaning expenses.

ENROLLMENT REACHES 6,087

Public School Figures Exceed Last Year's Mark by 104 Pupils.

The Marion Public school enrollment leaped to 6,087 pupils on the second day, an official report from the offices of George A. Bowman, superintendent showed today at 1:30 p. m. This mark shows 104 more pupils than on the second day last year. Yesterday the total enrollment at noon was 5,981, which was 155 more pupils than the opening enrollment in 1929 showed.

Fifty-seven of the additional pupils today were enrolled in the high school and 49 were in the grade schools. The total this year exceeds registration for several years.

Elementary, junior and senior high schools were on regular schedules of classes today. Pupils were assigned their lessons for Wednesday's classes, and the routine of the nine month's school year was begun.

The Seventh Day Adventist school opened yesterday for a short time, to enroll the pupils and instruct them in the books to be used this year, and was dismissed to convene today for regular sessions. After this week the school will open at 8:30 a. m. For the remainder of this week the opening time will be 9:45 a. m.

Attendance last year was about 13 pupils. The enrollment this year will not exceed that figure, school officials said today.

ERIE CONDUCTOR 50 YEARS ON ROAD

W. S. Brumbaugh, East Center Street, Soon To Complete Half Century on Job.

he has built several houses, doing most of the work himself, and has kept his home beautiful with flowers and a well trimmed lawn. If anything needs repairing around the house, the chances are Brumbaugh repairs it.

Brumbaugh and his wife were one of the 500 families to move to Marion in 1912 when the Erie railroad transferred its terminal from Galion to this city. He first obtained work with the road in Galion, after trying his hand at express work and running a feed business.

Three years with the company found him being promoted from brakeman to freight conductor, a position carrying with it considerable responsibility. In 1900, after 20 years with the railroad company, he became assistant passenger train conductor and a few years later was entrusted with the responsibility of one of the finest trains on the road at the time.

Has Florida Home

The last few years have brought some rewards for his labors. He and Mrs. Brumbaugh have enjoyed from two to three months each year at their home near St. Petersburg, Fla., but most of the time finds him on the job in and out of Marion.

When on regular duty he travels on the average of 6,430 miles a month, and has done so for nearly 30 years. He has traveled from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico on foreign roads, but has always been connected with the Erie system.

Asked to what he attributed his health, he said, "Work and exercise. Many men eat hearty meals and then sleep the rest of the time they're not on the job. I always aim to get plenty of exercise, and it's not difficult, for I like to work."

"If you 'tend to business they'll treat you right," he said when asked concerning his lengthy stay with the Erie.

Although still an active man, Mr. Brumbaugh is getting to the age where retirement would be welcome. He will probably locate permanently in his home in Florida when he leaves the railroad work.

U. S. and British Guns Fire on Chinese Reds

By The Associated Press

HANKOW, China, Sept. 9—Two foreign gunboats repulsed Communist attacks at nearby points on the Yangste river yesterday inflicting heavy damage on their adversaries. Dispatches said neither of the foreign gunboats suffered casualties.

The warships involved were the American gunboat Tutuila and the British gunboat Ladybird.

A roving Communist band fired upon the Tutuila with machine guns and trench mortars about 80 miles above Yochow, Hunan province. The warship answered with three-inch rifles and machine guns. The bandits were dislodged and their mortars destroyed. Dispatches failed to state whether any Reds were killed or wounded.

85 Escape When Flames Destroy Plant at Paterson, N. J.

By The Associated Press

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 9—At least three persons were believed to have been trapped today in the Lamond Robertson cotton mill, which was destroyed by fire. Eighty-five escaped, two others were seriously burned and one fireman was injured.

First reports said that several hundred employes were trapped in the building, but officials said that was erroneous.

The fire, believed to have started by spontaneous combustion, was discovered at 11:30. In half an hour the two story brick structure was an inferno of flame.

One man, his clothing afire, leaped from a second story window to the street. He was rushed to a hospital in an ambulance, his condition serious.

GANGSTER SLAIN

Peter Nicastro "Taken for Ride" in Chicago West Side District.

By United Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Peter Nicastro, 23, arrested many times but never convicted of a crime, was shot four times through the head and tossed from a speeding automobile into a street in the heart of the Genna West Side gang stronghold early today. He died 15 minutes later.

All the bullets were fired into Nicastro's head from close range, each leaving powder burns. Scratches on his shoes indicated he had fought with the men who took him on his last "ride," and that they had dragged him into the car.

Police said the youth once was a member of the notorious "42" gang and that they long had suspected him of being a bootlegger.

SECOND NEGRO SHOT BY POLICE OFFICERS

"Rubber" Bryan, Sought for Darien Shooting, Is in Serious Condition.

By The Associated Press

DARIEN, Ga., Sept. 9—"Rubber" Bryan, 24, sought as the second negro who participated in a gun fight yesterday in which a police officer was slain and three others wounded, was shot and seriously wounded in a wood near here today.

Deputy sheriffs who had been searching throughout the night for the negro, returned to Darien this morning and announced they found Bryan lying dead, with a shotgun charge in his back.

Coroner Crumley went to the wood and his investigation showed the negro was still alive. A few minutes after Crumley's arrival, the negro regained consciousness.

He was brought to Darien and given medical attention.

Deputy Sheriff Malone told Coroner Crumley that he and his two companions early this morning approached a negro house, and that Bryan ran out, fired two pistol shots at them and fled. Malone said he fired once at the fleeing negro with his shotgun, and that the negro dropped.

They said they found a pistol said to have been missed by the Darien bank several weeks ago after a robbery, near his side.

Bryan was lying in a woods in the opposite direction of the swamps where George Grant, 40-year-old negro believed to have been Bryan's companion in yesterday's gun battle, was captured.

Grant later was lynched in the county jail and a detachment of national guardsmen was sent here upon orders of the governor of Georgia.

Hurricane Death Toll Is Estimated at 1,500

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The hurricane's death toll in Santo Domingo Wednesday was officially estimated today at 1,500 persons by Ernest J. Swift, American Red Cross disaster relief expert, who went from here to the stricken city to cooperate in relief work.

Swift's estimate, Red Cross officials said, probably is reliable because of his extensive experience in hurricane disaster relief in the West Indies.

pared to a total of 213,000 two years ago.

In eight states, scattered from coast to coast, voters today choose party candidates for national and local office.

Today's primaries are to decide who will represent Louisiana and South Carolina in the senate. Their Democratic nominations are equal to election. Senate candidates are to be chosen also in Colorado, Michigan and New Hampshire. In Arizona and Vermont selections for governor hold the principal interest while in the state of Washington contests for house seats head the list.

Tomorrow Georgia Democrats will hold a primary and next week Massachusetts, New York and Wisconsin will stage the last pre-election contests.

Absence of contests within the parties in Maryland made yesterday's primary there largely a formality, marked by the lightest vote in years.

South Carolina's contest is a run-off primary to decide between the leading candidates in the Aug. 26 polling. Cole L. Blease seeks to hold his senate seat and James F. Byrnes, former representative, is making his second try to oust him.

COUZENS UNDER FIRE

Michigan Senator Opposed for Alleged "Party Irregularity."

DETROIT, Sept. 9—Whether Michigan Republicans will punish by their votes the "party irregularity" of Senator James Couzens, numbered among the independents in the United States senate, is one of the questions to be decided by the state-wide primary today.

Chase S. Osborn of Sault Ste. Maries, former governor, has made his principal campaign issue in seeking the senatorial nomination, the accusation that Senator Couzens is not a "regular" Republican.

Osborn has asked the voters to repudiate Couzens and nominate a candidate pledged to "party regularity." Osborn said the senator had "represented no one but himself."

DEMOCRATS REBUKED, SENATOR FESS SAYS

Victory in Maine Pointed to as Indorsement of Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Senator Simeon Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, cited the Republican victory in Maine today as a rebuke to the Democrats "in their efforts to make a campaign issue out of the distress of the people in a world wide economic depression."

The Ohio senator saw the result as the greatest victory in an off-year in 24 years, with a single exception.

He added it was an indorsement of President Hoover and said it demonstrated that in spite of the attacks directed against the chief executive, he was not only holding the support of the people but was gaining in their esteem.

GOOD SHOT

Police Find Robbers and Loot Near Van Wert Today.

VAN WERT, O., Sept. 9—Two alleged bank robbers were in custody and their loot restored today as a result of the marksmanship of M. M. Agler, cashier of the Farmers bank of Ohio city, near here.

The flight of the pair ended at a farm house last night with Charles Anderson, 27, Pittsburgh, exhausted by his wounds. The other man, Charles Blair, 50, Morgantown, W. Va., had stopped to get his companion a drink of water.

Officials recovered the $1,000 taken in the robbery and identified the robbers' automobile as one stolen from Dick Webster of Van Wert. Anderson was taken to a hospital and Blair was put in jail on a charge of robbery.

Anderson was shot by Agler as he climbed out of the teller's cage after scooping up the money yesterday, officials said.

WANTS TO SEE GAME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — President Hoover wants to see a world series game next month if it can possibly be arranged. His speaking engagements, October 2, 6 and 7 may make it difficult for him to find time, but as Philadelphia appears to be virtually assured of the American league pennant there is a prospect he may find time to go there for one game.

Bust Carved By Prisoner Is Put On Display Here

A BUST carved by John Kmetz, an inmate of the Ohio penitentiary, is on display in the window of Nelson's Jewelry store, East Center street. The exhibit was brought to Marion through the efforts of Mrs. Walter E. Hane, art chairman of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs, as a part of her activities as chairman. The bust also will be on display at a number of meetings of clubs whose seasons open before Oct. 7.

The bust is carved from soap and is considered one of the finest pieces of sculpture ever to be made by an inmate of the penitentiary.

Kmetz, who is 27 years of age, began to carve cameos and other small objects from soap and has studied the art until now his models are of life-size proportions. Since 1925 he has submitted a number of carvings at the state fair. He was admitted to the penitentiary Dec. 12, 1924, from Ross county, to serve 10 to 25 years on a charge of robbery.

Ever since he was a child Kmetz liked to draw, he says. At the age of 13 years he entered the Cleveland School of Art to take up portrait painting but due to financial difficulties he was forced to give it up. He had been in prison three years before he began to carve models out of soap for the state fair, after being persuaded by a fellow prisoner to answer an advertisement in the Ohio Penitentiary News. As a pastime he carves cameos and studies story writing.

Mrs. Hane is calling a meeting of the club art chairmen at her home next week.

SYNOPSIS

Arnold Winslow, wealthy retired lawyer of Washington, D. C. enlists the services of G. Thorne, detective, to prevent his adopted son, Jack, from marrying Elsa Chase. Elsa is a beautiful but crippled girl, a guest at the Winslow home. The elder Winslow suspects she is an adventuress, and a mysterious woman in blue has been seen talking to her secretly. Dr. Paul Kane, supposed friend of Arnold Winslow, is brought by him to examine Elsa. She appears panic-stricken at the prospect of an examination, but finally consents. Later that night Kane is found dead under the window of his upstairs suite. The coroner calls the police into the case. The door of the bathroom from the window of which Kane fell is found to have been locked from within. Elsa Chase seems strangely upset when Thorne tells her of Kane's death. An autopsy proves that Kane died, not from his fall, but from some kind of poison.

CHAPTER 7

An Eavesdropper

The door of the telephone booth swung outward as Jack Winslow brushed by its departing occupant so closely as to jog her elbow.

Taking out her vanity case the woman haphazardly added a touch of powder here and there to her already rouged cheeks, her eyes were more busily engaged in watching young Winslow's features reflected in the powerful magnifying mirror on the open lid of her box, than in observing her own countenance.

"What's that you say?" came Jack's clear voice, carrying a hint of impatience. "Father's in conference — what? Lambert, speak louder; well, don't shout! Can I speak to Miss Elsa? What?" in his exasperation Jack thumped the telephone stand. "Central, give me a better connection. Lambert, you fool, speak into the telephone. Did the messenger get to the house with Miss Elsa's medicine? He did? All right, I'll be home soon."

But it was some seconds before Jack left the booth and in that time, the woman eavesdropper, was safely across the bank. Jack's subsequent interview with one of the tellers sent him with puckered brow to another window. Then walking over to one of the high mahogany desks, he proceeded to fill a blank note. With expert adroitness the same woman wormed her way to his side and under pretense of writing a check at the long desk, she read the document lying in front of him:

"Sixty days after date I promise to pay (Jack's blotter covered the name) $10,000 for value received. . . ."

Jack made the return trip to Oakland with due regard to traffic regulations; the next conviction for speeding meant the revocation of his driver's permit. It was close to 5 o'clock before he drove into the garage. Peter, the chauffeur, stopped polishing the family limousine long enough to touch his forehead with a grimy finger.

"Mr. Winslow's been askin' for you, sir," he volunteered. "Want your car washed tonight, sir?"

"No, thanks, Peter; I'll probably need the car," and gathering up the magazines he had purchased for Elsa that morning, he walked away. To the right of the garage was the gardener's cottage. Instead of going direct to the big mansion Jack crossed the lawn to the small house, but his repeated rap on the kitchen door brought no response. Finally he turned over the door mat; the key, which generally lay conceaeld there in Ferguson's absence from the cottage, was missing. Through the window Jack obtained a glimpse of the telephone, placed there for the convenience of the men working on the grounds, but he turned away in disgust; evidently he would have to use the telephone at home.

A moment later Lambert, the butler, opened the front door before Jack could get out his latch key.

"Miss Kline's wishin' to see you, sir," he spoke in subdued tones. "She's waitin' beyond in the dining room."

"Is anything the matter with Elsa?" Jack's ever present fears for his fiancee's health gained the upper hand and his tone bespoke his alarm; it was but seldom that Miss Kline discussed her patient with him.

The nurse hesitated. "She is nervous and unstrung," she admitted; "and that will react on her general condition. Again Miss Kline paused. "I have thought for some time that a warmer climate would be the best for her——"

"You mean she should go south—to Florida," breaking in impetuously.

"Get her away soon," she begged earnestly. "If she won't go without you, arrange to accompany us. This tragedy here—Dr. Kane's death—" with an expressive gesture, "it is sure to have a most disastrous effect upon her nerves and the slightest agitation might mean——"

"Don't!" Jack raised his hand, half imploringly, "let us keep the news from her."

"Too late, Mr. Jack," clipping her words in her haste. "That man Thorne has already told her," observing his bewilderment, "the detective who has been hanging around the house all day."

Jack's set features whitened. "I remember now," he muttered. "Where is Elsa?"

"In her room, asleep."

To Jack as he trudged upstairs the atmosphere of the house seemed somber; the electric lights had not been turned on and the gathering storm clouds, with a promise of snow, had darkened the horizon, adding to the general gloom. Jack was not ordinarily affected by weather changes, but he was conscious of a sense of depression very foreign to his usually even temperament. As he stopped at his bedroom, a door further down the hall opened and Thorne, followed by Inspector Mitchell, came toward him.

"Just a moment," the former exclaimed, quickening his footsteps. "Inspector Mitchell is very anxious to meet you, Mr. Winslow; in fact, we have been waiting for you."

"Indeed," Jack's gruff tones were not overly cordial and Mitchell regarded him with an appraising eye. Jack stood six feet, two inches in his stockings and his broad shoulders and deep chest gave clear indication of his athletic tendencies.

"I'd like a few moments' conversation," stated Mitchell briskly, as his companion remained silent. He glanced up and down the hall significantly. "Your room here?" with a slight wave of his hand toward the open door.

"Yes, come inside." But once within his room, Jack did not ask either man to sit down. "What can I do for you?"

"We want your version of what happened last night," said Mitchell, blandly.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Wins Dicky's Support

THERE was that in Dicky's tone which made me loath to answer his query concerning the method of handling Philip Veritzen which Lillian had advised. But I dared not hesitate. I did not wish him to feel that I attached any especial importance to the proposition I was about to make. And I did wish him to understand the truth, that the idea was Lillian's from inception to possible conclusion.

"Lillian thinks we ought to humor him as far as possible, in the same manner that one treats any mentally sick person."

Dicky struck his fist upon the table and I shot a side glance toward the end of the room where Purnell was working which brought a swift, muttered apology.

Dicky Becomes Tractable

"Sorry! I won't explode again. But when you talk about humoring that hyena—the way I'd humor him would be with a club studded with jagged nails—I see red all over the place. Go ahead. I begin to see light. In just what particulars do you and Lil wish the dear old thing humored?"

I felt my courage slipping, snatched at it and held it steady.

"It's about this party," I said. "I have counted so on Mary having a perfect evening, and I was afraid that Mr. Veritzen would spoil it by some exhibition of his enmity toward her. But instead he has seemed unusually interested, and as you know, not only offeerd theater boxes at his house for the whole party, but also insisted upon sending all the cut flowers and corsage bouquets for all the women guests. It's wonderful of him to do it for her——"

I had kept up bravely up to this point, though conscious that Dicky's quizzical eyes fixed on me held sardonic mockery. But when he gave an exasperated little snort I faltered and flushed.

"You'd better blush," he said, but I was relieved to hear nothing but amused mockery in his voice. "I'll fall for the humorin gstunt, and a lot of others, but when you calmly state that Phil Veritzen's playing the bountiful caliph at this party because of Mary, you tax my credulity, or that of anybody else a bit too far. Mary could go without flowers until she had to go out and pick dandelions in the backyard for all Phil Veritzen cares, and you know it better than anybody. And for all your modesty and inferiority complex and all the rest of the inhibitions, you know on whom he's showering all the pretty posies. But that's neither here, nor yet there. I see your point and Lil's all be boys.

We had a swim when we went after the cows at night, because the girls had went to see Gimmie and her mother. We didn't go. I have seen too much of Gimmie already.

and I suppose the gist of the whole matter is that we mustn't risk wounding the vanity of the great sultan by refusing to wear his flowers. Is that it?"

I looked at him with sudden inspiration.

"Dicky, before I answer that question, I want you to answer one for me. Have you the remotest idea that either for policy's sake—on my own account—or from preference, I would exchange a single dandelion blossom from you for the costliest bouquet Philip Veritzen or any other man could send me?"

My eyes held his steadily, and with a little leap of my pulses I saw his facee soften and a tender smile curve his lips.

"I'll admit I'm fatuous enough to believe that."

"Then," I pressed home my advantage swiftly, "Can't you be generous and—"

"Oh! I'll countermand the order for the bouquet," he conceded airily.

"But—I don't want you to, even though it is terribly extravagant. I am going to wear Mr. Veritzen's flowers as a shoulder knot, but I'm going to take two or three blossoms from yours and tuck them in at my waist. The rest I'll have in my room. I suppose I'm terribly sentimental, but I'd like to feel blossoms to yours close——"

"To your heart?" Dicky asked softly, yet with whimsically curving lips. We were being terribly banal I knew, but I cared no whit.

"Yes," I acknowledged, and he swiftly put his hand over mine. Then his face darkened and I knew that some fresh cause of irritation had just come to him.

"Look here!" he said, withdrawing his hand, "I don't mind your wearing that old goat's flowers as long as he's sending them to all the women guests, but I do mind his getting the idea that he's beating me out on the proposition. When I came into the dining-room a few minutes ago, I heard him ask you if you had decided whose flowers you were to wear, and of course that meant he knew I was sending you a bouquet. Yet no one save you knew that little thing."

I looked at him steadily.

"Aren't you forgetting Edith?" I asked.

MAKE the taste TEST!

COMPARE Kellogg's Corn Flakes with any others you know — and flavor will surely win! The marvelous flavor of Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

Kellogg originated corn flakes more than 24 years ago and imitations have never yet been able to equal the tempting crispness and taste of the ORIGINAL Corn Flakes.

Just try Kellogg's for breakfast. Fine for lunch with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Great for a late bedtime snack.

Look for the red-and-green package at your grocer's. It stands for genuine Kellogg's — the favorite corn flakes wherever cereals are sold. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

IMPORTANT: Sometimes other corn flakes may be offered you with the claim they are "just like Kellogg's" — or even that they are "made by Kellogg." Such statements are false. Kellogg makes only one brand of corn flakes. They are the most popular in the world because they are different and the best liked corn flakes you can buy.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I WAS supprized this morning when me and Jubilee woke up, because both of us had the cover over us, and when I got up to let him down out of the window the air was quite chillish.

I put on my short britches and went down and got the pail and done my work, and the bunch was in the barn and Nibs asted me what my father had done to me for getting stuck in the barrel of tar, and I said he hadn't done nothing. Then I went in and strained the milk and when I went in the other room to feed my face my father said: "And how is the tar baby this morning?" And they all looked at me and grinned and I said, "All right," and sot down. But I couldn't help looking at him kinda sideways and wondering if I was going to get a licking. But he said I had had a good reason for not going to Sunday school, and maybe I had learned more than I would if I had went. I think my ant was disappointed, but I wasn't.

I had to tell them all about it, and when I knew I wasn't going to get licked I made it as funny as I could and they all laughed. My father said I could think of more ways to get into trouble than any half a dozen boys he ever knew. I didn't know what to say, but just then Annabelle Lee plastered herself in the eye with a spoon full of her oatmeal, so I didn't have to say anything. I don't think it hurt her very much. I was glad to get outside.

The wind was blowing off the lake, and my grandfather came outside and felt of the breeze with his whiskers and said he was going out and get him some bass, and I could go with him if I hurried back from the pasture. So we went over to the vacant lot and played ball before we took the cows out. The Lost Bag of Tripe had brang his football and Nibs kicked it through Miss Parmer's attic window, and she was just going away when we got there, but she said to take the stepladder upstairs and push up the trap to the attic and get it and then to lock the house up and not disturb anything. So we put the ladder up and the Lost Bag of Tripe went up and pushed the trap up and climb through, and we took the ladder down and went down and locked the house and skun out and left him there and went to the pasture, and would of went in swimming if it hadn't of been for the girls. We got some switches and some mud to make mud balls and was going to get him to look out of the attic window and then paint him, but Miss Parmer had got home and let him down. It takes a woman to spoil a fella's day for him. I think I will learn to be a cook, and then I can be a batchelor and bring my children up the same way. I hope they will

The Housewife's Duty

To her home, not to her grocer

The housewife was not put on earth to support grocers. She owes no grocer a living. She does owe herself and her family the greatest amount of the best food her money can buy. Her only duty when buying food is to her home.

The honest grocer asks no favors. He does not expect charity. He is willing to be judged by the amount of good food he gives for the consumer's dollar.

A & P is a grocer who has already been judged by many consumers. After seventy years in business, it enjoys the patronage of over 5,000,000 thrifty housewives.

So large a following of critical shoppers is the result of a single simple fact—that the public buys where it obtains the most for its money.

PREDICT G. O. P. WILL ADOPT DRY PLANK

Definite Action on Prohibition Forecast for Convention This Week.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—Adoption of a "dry" plank in the Ohio G. O. P. platform and the unequivocal announcement by United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch of his support of the prohibition cause will feature the deliberations of the Republican state platform convention which opens here Thursday afternoon, it was indicated today.

Democratic state leaders and candidates for state offices have registered their objection to the insertion of a "wet" plank in the platform that will be adopted at the Democratic state convention here on Sept. 16. Former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, Democratic nominee for U. S. senator, however, is publicly advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead and Miles dry laws.

That the Republican state convention will adopt a platform containing a plank reaffirming the action taken at the G. O. P. state convention here two years ago when the delegates went on record supporting prohibition was a prediction made by a prominent member of Governor Myers Y. Cooper's cabinet.

This same cabinet official asserted that Senator McCulloch, during his address at the initial session of the convention Thursday, will declare himself unqualifiedly in support of the dry cause.

FESS ON HIS WAY

Confers With Hoover Before Starting for Ohio Convention.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Senator Simeon D. Fess was to leave here today for Columbus, O., where he is scheduled to deliver the keynote address before the state Republican convention Thursday.

The new chairman of the Republican national committee conferred with President Hoover before leaving for Columbus. He expressed himself as well satisfied with the party outlook throughout the country.

Fess, however, will urge his Ohio Republican associates to make every effort to carry the state next November for Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch and Governor Cooper. Like other Republican leaders he regards a victory in Ohio this year as one of the most important on the Republican calendar.

GOVERNMENT WARNS CANTON UNDERWORLD

Orders Bonds for Graft Case Witnesses; Tells Jungle, "Hands Off."

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 9—Nine of the 11 witnesses who are to tell of an alleged liquor protection ring involving former Canton officials were ordered placed under bond today as the government served notice on the Canton "jungle" to "keep hands off."

The witnesses, rounded up on bench capiases given deputy marshals Saturday, were brought to Cleveland last night and were to be placed under bond by Judge Samuel West today.

They are to testify in the conspiracy trials of former Safety Director E. E. Curtis, former Councilman Arthur B. Drukenbrod; Ellis Darany, former police sergeant and head of the vice squad, John Gust, John Kouris and Mike Smith, all of Canton.

United States Attorney Wilfred J. Mahon ordered the round up because of persistent rumors that efforts had been made to intimidate the witnesses. He said he would ask heavy bonds to insure their appearance when the conspiracy trials begin, probably early next week.

"There has been enough evidence of tampering with government witnesses that we are justified bringing them in," Mahon said.

"This move will serve notice on all Canton residents and others elsewhere interested in these cases that these are government witnesses and keep hands off.

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 9—After taking Monday to select a jury, the trial of Fred Massa, 26, of Mansfield charged with first degree murder, got under way here this morning with the opening statements of Prosecuting Attorney J. Dudley Sears, who demanded the death penalty. Massa is charged with Kenneth McCartney and Earl Sites, as being the slayers of Ralph Wilcox, Galion filling station attendant, during an attempted holdup June 27.

The jury of 11 men and one woman was sworn in at 5:45 Monday afternoon after 35 veniremen of 55 prospective jurors called had been examined. While the defense consumed its entire quota of six on peremptory challange the state disqualified only four upon completion of the examinations.

After the jury had been sworn in and excused, Peter Heydinger, of Cranberry township was examined and sworn in as the thirteenth juror.

Jurros who will decide the fate of Massa are Emery Spitler of Lykens; Frank B. Lauck of Bucyrus; Mrs. Elmira O. Foster of Crestline; Clarence Strauch of Crestline; Wesley Beal of Bucyrus, J. W. Bishop of Bucyrus; W. W. Wyer of Oceola; William McHenry of Dallas township; J. G. Meister of Bucyrus township; Charles Stricker of Bucyrus; D. S. Kimble of Holmes township and Adam Conkle of Bucyrus.

Adam Conkle was excused this morning because of illness and the thirteenth juror, Peter Heydinger, was given his place.

AGAIN KONJOLA GIVES PROOF OF ITS WORTH

Happy Lady Finds First and Only Relief From Ailments In This Master Medicine.

MISS ELLA PERKINS

"Stomach and kidney trouble had put me in a very weakened condition," said Miss Ella Perkins, 466 Dayton street, Cincinnati. "My heart palpitated wildly after each meal because of the gas forming in my stomach. I suffered from dizzy spells. Rheumatism also tortured me and both my ankles were swollen and my joints and muscles were stiff and sore. I lost in strength, and came down to 103 pounds.

"After my first bottle of Konjola I felt better. Within a few weeks stomach miseries, heart palpitations, and those terrible pains of rheumatism vanished. It is hard to believe that one medcine could do what Konjola did for me. I am indeed grateful."

Though Konjola works quickly six to eight bottles are recommended as a fair trial. Many people are benefited within a few weeks, but it is better to take this medicine for a longer period to obtain the best results.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting acids. 25c and 50c a bottle drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has bee U. S. Registered Trade Mark o Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co and its predecessor Charles H. Pl since 1875.

ERIE TIES UP SERIES WITH 3-1 VICTORY

CRUDE WORK IN FIELD WRECKS CHANCES OF FADLEY FOR VICTORY

Roundhouse Team Takes Advantage of Church Team's Misplays in Third Frame To Edge Win; Sammy Sharrock Stars for Winners.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

Giving Shoemaker some support that bordered on the impossible and taking advantage of a lapse in the Lee Street defense in the third inning, Erie Roundhouse sank the hopes of the church team for a three-game victory for the city championship by a score of 3 to 1 yesterday in the sixth game of the series. The seventh and deciding game will be played Wednesday at Lincoln Park.

This Roundhouse outfit simply wasn't to be beaten yesterday. It would have taken a better ball team than Lee Street was although a few minor changes in the breaks and the result might have been different. Lee Street outhit the winners, 7 to 5 but in those five bingles were included two doubles and a triple, the triple and one of the doubles coming in the disastrous third frame.

Hurls Good Game

Carl Fadley started out in good shape and was breezing along comfortably until the third came around. Then he got into trouble through no fault of his own when H. Richards made a terrible play of Lusch's easy fly to left center. J. Richards was standing waiting to make the catch when "Shorty" ran over gave a big jump and missed the ball, Lusch reaching third.

Sammy Sharrock then plastered a long triple into left center scoring Lusch. Price flied to right but Crabtree's throw held Sharrock on third. Howwever adley tried to intercept the throw and knocked it way over Conkle's head allowing Sammy to Score. Robbins then beat out a hit to short and came all the way in when Williams doubled and J. Richards threw the

No Enthusiasm Over Ten-Round Fight Thursday

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Madison Square Garden is having difficulty in stirring up old time enthusiasm over the ten round battle between Al Singer and Jimmy McLarnin at the Yankee stadium Thurrday night.

When the match was first suggested, the garden went for it in a big way as a "nautral" which should draw in the neighborhood of $300.000. Estimates of the gate now have dwindled to $150,000.

Just why the match has failed to stir public imagination cannot be said definitely. Singer has immense drawing power in his own right, particularly from his stamping ground in the Bronx while McLarnin, one of the most colorful of present-day battlers, has been an outstanding favorite ever since he first appeared here.

Singer's lightweight title will not be at stake, the match having been made at 142 pounds.

167 Horses To Step During Three-Day Fair Program

THREE RACES CARDED FOR OPENING DAY AT FAIRGROUND TRACK

Large Entry Lists Mark Majority of Ten Events Scheduled for Fans.

With one hundred and sixty-seven horses entered for the ten events included in the three-day speed program at the Marion County fair races that get under way tomorrow, prospects point to one of the most successful seasions ever held at the fairground track. Men have been busy working on the track for the past few days and it is expected to be lightning fast for the opening day of racing tomorrow.

The first day finds three events carded with heavy entry lists for each one. The program will open with the 2:20 trot in which 27 horses have been entered. The second race is the 2:22 pace in which 23 horses have been entered and the third and final race is the three-year-old pace that will find 10 horses going after first money.

The Harding Hotel management has offered eight free dinners to owners and drivers of certain races during the three-day program. On Wednesday the owner and driver of the winner in the three-year-old pace will receive a full dinner at the Harding with the compliments of Manager Mittenbuhler.

On Thursday the owners and drivers of the horses making the best time in any trot and any pace will be given free dinners. Friday's free dinners will go to the owner and driver of the horse running the fastest heat in the three-year-old trot.

In between the heats of the various races the rodeo that is featuring the night fair program will present a free program in front of the grandstand. This rodeo outfit is rated one of the best in the country and comes here direct from an engagement at Detroit.

Thursday's program of racing finds four events carded starting with the 2:12 trot with eight entries. The 2:12 pace has nine entries, the 2:24 trot has 22, and the 2:24 pace has an even thirty horses going after the money.

Thirty-there horses will race in Friday's program which has three events carded. The 2:16 pace has drawn 15 entries, the three-year-old trot has eight, and the 2:16 trot has attracted ten entries.

The races will probably start at 1 p. m. with post time scheduled for a half hour earlier.

YOUNGSTERS FIGHT FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Only Four Englishmen, One Irishman Left in Running After Bell's Victory Over Jean Borotra.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9—The ambitious tennis youngsters who are gunning this week at Forest Hills for the national championship which Big Bill Tilden is defending for the "steenth time evidently are firm believers in the wisdom of the old law which says "charity begins at home."

Berkeley Bell set them the "horrible example" when he upset Jean Borotra last Saturday and they have been following his lead with wholehearted avidity since, treating our foreign visitors with anything but kindness.

So roughly have they handled the foreigners, in fact, that today, as the championships enter the third round, only four Englishmen and a single Irishman remain of the more than a dozen invaders.

And after the sun sets on the historic West Side tennis club stadium this evening, and the field is cut down to the 16 survivors who will battle tomorrow to enter the quarter-finals, it would not be surprising to find that quintet of foreigners listed among the vanquished.

G. Lyttleton Rogers, the six feet seven inch champion of Ireland, is one invader who is certain to take it on the chin. He meets Henry Ellsworth Vines, Jr., the Pasadena "boy wonder," and after the Irishman's poor exhibition against Eddie Burns yesterday, Vines is favored.

Two of the Englishmen are certain losers too. They are Frederick J. Perry, who stacks up against Eddie Jacobs, Pittsburgh university star, and Ted Avory, the Oxford boy, who tilts with Frank Hunter of New York.

Have Better Chance

The other two Britishers, J. S. Olliff and H. G. Lee, stand better chances of coming through. Lee tackles Jerry Lang and Olliff plays Keither Werner.

The Mangin-Hennessey tussle today, incidentally, shapes up as just about the best on the programme.

Bill Tilden may have to step a bit faster than he has been to win. He meets Edward F. Feibleman lanky ex-Harvard captain.

ACHIU AND GORMAN FEATURE WRESTLING SHOW HERE SEPT. 16

Local Season To Get Under Way Week from Tonight at Shovel Gym.

The Marion Steam Shovel Athletic Association through its promotor Benny Criswell will open up its second winter of wrestling programs Tuesday, Sept. 16 with a main-go battle between Walter Achiu and Jack Gorman featuring. Last winter wrestling drew good crowds to the Shovel gymnasium on W. Center street where all of this year's shows will be held.

Local enthusiasts of the groan and grunt pastime will recognize in Achiu and Gorman, the two boys who staged such a whiz-bang 30-minute bout on the Crystal Lake card Labor day. Gorman was given the referee's decision at the end of 30 minutes of wrestling but the fans disagreed most violently with Beardsley's choice. The Chinese star looked plenty good and will give Gorman about all he wants Tuesday.

Their bout here will be a finish scrap, this meaning that one wrestler will have to take two falls to be declared the winner. Although Gorman is considered one of the greatest defensive wrestlers in his division he'll be forced to go the limit to pin the former football star's shoulders to the mat twice in one evening. This has not been accomplished in the past year or so and Achiu has met some plenty tough boys in this space of time.

BULLS STOPPED BY SALES WAVE

Buying Enthusiasm Wanes Outside of Professional Ranks.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The bull movement in industrial stocks and specialties was blocked today by another wave of speculative selling, which was chiefly effective against the market favorites which have been advancing in good form since last Friday. Stock trading up to the noon period totalled 362,000 shares less than in the same period yesterday, and buying enthusiasm outside of the ranks of the professionals waned considerably. The market as a whole held steadily against the bears, and in some sections notably the tobacco, the foodstuffs and the airplane stocks, moderate upward movements were recorded.

American Tobacco's 6-point rise to 92 was the outstanding performance of the industrials. United Aircraft rose to 63 and General Motors, yesterday's closing favorite, reached 47 before any large seller volume appeared. The foodstuffs stocks, including general foods, National Dairy, Gold Dust and National Biscuit, sold up at a point on the average. Further selling of the oils was caused by the spread of the eastern "gas war" which was inaugurated yesterday by Standard Oil of N. Y. and important independents.

Today in Marion Market

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Retail market circles were somewhat inactive this morning, so far as new arrivals are concerned. Outside of the marketing of large baskets of beets and turnips at five cents a pound, and the offering of a large variety of pickles from 60 to 75 cents a hundred, little change was noted in the supply of garden produce this morning.

Local egg prices have remained firm at 31 to 37 cents at dozen following a two-cent gain here several days ago, when wholesalers boosted prices to farmers. Smaller towns near Marion were offering fancier prices for the eggs, forcing Marion market men to offer more to assure a local supply.

MARKET TAKES EARLY DROP

Scattered Buying Eases Wheat Prices Down to Low Level.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Scattered commission house selling of wheat eased the market down here today in early trading. With no news to stimulate action, and cables from Liverpool showing weakness, Chicago wheat was noticed on the declines and fair support for the December delivery showed at around steady just below the openhouses also sold corn and this caused a decline to below yesterday's finish. Opening ¼@⅜c lower, wheat slipped downgrade still more, but rallied slightly and held aorund steady just below the opening levels. Corn started unchanged to 1¼c lower, sank under selling, and then steadied.

Cables from Liverpool, later confirmed by seaboard dispatches, saying that foreign demand for North American wheat continued disappointingly small, helped to give the market here an easier trend. The cables said that countries deficient in wheat were buying on a hand to mouth basis, but that Russian offerings were not pressed aggressively. Threshing returns from Western Europe were reported disappointing, with millers buying only spasmodically.

Traders were inclined to discount bullish reports aspects of the English reports, however, because of advices from the northwest that spring wheat was moving to market rapidly enough to block congestion at terminals. Advices from St. Paul said that unless the grain movement slackened or shipping down the lakes picked up noticeably in the next few days there would be danger of a temporary embargo at country points. Heavy marketing of wheat at Canadian points have forced Winnipeg grain dealers into the Chicago wheat pit with hedging sales believed responsible for much of weakness. Corn displayed little strength and prices ranged around steady. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were steady.

ERIE TIES UP SERIES WITH 3-TO-1 TRIUMPH

Crude Work in Field Wrecks Fadley's Chances of Third Win.

ball away trying to catch Robbins at third.

Lee Street's sole bid for victory came in the sixth. After Kerr had popped to Shoemaker, Braham beat out a hit to Lang. He took second while Lang was retiring Marshall. H. Richards then dropped a double into right center scoring Braham. Conkle whistled a twisting liner between short and third and it looked like another run but Sammy Sharrock made a last grab, got the ball, and the game was saved.

Erie's third inning was the only time they threatened at all, Fadley getting the side in order in the last three frames, only one ball going to the outfield in this time. Only nine balls were hit to the outfield during the game by Erie batters. Lee Street started off the seventh with what looked like a promising rally but a close decision at first base cut it short.

Crabtree opened with his first hit, a line single to left. Then taking a lead-off he failed to see A. I. Hinklin, the Erie catcher and a quick play, Price to Sharrock to Hinklin found him called out. The decision could have gone either way but it went the why of the victors yesterday.

Sharrock Shines

This Sharrock's play was one of the greatest exhibitions of the entire series and he was easily the big gun in the Erie victory. He handled seven chances without an error, his one play in the sixth cutting off a dangerous rally. In addition he got one of the five hits and scored one run and batted in another. Fadley stopped Price and Lang but Robbins got to him for a single and double.

The game was played in 47 minutes, this making an aveage of about three and a half minutes to complete each half inning. The paid attendance totaled $125.85, setting a new mark for series games by a margin of 25 cents. The previous record was $125.60 taken in at the first game between these two teams.

ROBINS SINK PHILLIES FOR DOUBLE VICTORY

Flatbush Flock Now Trail Cubs by Three and Half Games.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Ray Moss did a swell job of hurling and Bressler, Frederick and other Robin hitters made the old Liberty Bell shiver in every crack and cranny, Brooklyn downing the Phillies twice, 8 to 2 and 11 to 4 as they moved into third place in the National league—and all to the end that everyone was going around today with a pencil and pad trying to figure out which team would flop out in front at the end of the week.

But trying to pick that winner is just like betting on a horse race. Hence, we offer the following suggestions:

Chicago—Been consistent performer and closes fast; Owner Wrigley has high opinion of Jockey Hack Wilson.

St. Louis—Going in best form right now; may surprise and take everything; will have no excuses.

Brooklyn—Has recovered from recent attack of glanders; won last out and best would make real contender; reported ready for killing.

New York—Cast out last effort; got caught at barrier; has worked well in mornings; has a chance but present company may be too good; tab for next time out.

Art is "self-expression," if there is anything in one to express.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 9—Two robbers kidnaped Edward Kells, cashier of the Telling-Belle Vernon Co., forced him to open the company's safe and escaped with $11,588 early today.

Kells told police he was about to go home after visiting at the home of a young woman friend when the robbers stepped on the running board of his machine and ordered him to drive to the company's headquarters.

They forced him to open the safe, blindfolded him and fled after ordering him to give them 10 minutes' start.

The robbery was conducted so quietly that it was unnoticed either by the watchman or a crowd which gathered in front of the place after an automobile accident.

TRAVELING GAVEL IS RETURNED TO GRANGE

Third and Fourth Degrees Conferred on Class of 33 at Meeting.

The traveling gavel which is the property of Grand Prairie grange No. 2370, was returned to the owners by a delegation from Tymochtee grange at the meeting last night at Grand Prairie school building northwest of the city. The gavel, which was made by County Deputy Master Elmer A. Williams from red gum wood, has been presented to each of the 11 granges in the county since leaving Grand Prairie grange early last spring. It is planned by Grand Prairie grange members to present it to the state grange at its meeting here in December.

Twenty-five members of Tymochtee grange attended the meeting and conferred the third and fourth degrees on a class of 33 candidates. During the business session plans were completed for the inspection in two weeks and final arrangements made for the exhibit at the county fair this week. Announcement was made that the grange would present the program at the meeting of Whetstone grange Sept. 16.

Guests included representatives from Tymochtee, Salt Rock, Bethlehem, Mt. Olive, Jackson and Universal grange.

Book Reviews

Turning New Pages

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

SOMETHING decidedly out of the ordinary in the mart of crime stories is Harry Stephen Keeler's novel "The Green Jade Hand," the prize mystery story chosen by the publishers, E. P. Dutton & Co., for August.

The author, an ex-newspaper man creates a colorful and interesting setting for his story—Chicago, the musty and cramped quarters of a curio dealer, the police station, the home of the king of Chicago's Chinatown, a penitentiary, the home of a curio collector, —and his knowledge of these places him in the veterans' class.

No one is above suspicion as the reader turns page after page, nearing always the stop sign which tells that "by this time all the characters in the story have been introduced" and it's your guess who is the guilty person. And, if you please, whether you go in for such indoor sport or not, you place your guess. This reviewer did not guess correctly.

THERE are two perfectly good reasons why the murder might be committed, one a rare book a Vindelinus de Spira, worth $50,000 and the other the Green Jade Hand with five fingers

The book is discovered by an eccentric old collector, one Amos Carrington, in a collection that is to be sold at auction later, who through fear of it being recognized as a rare volume, persuades Jeck, a curio dealer to "lift" it before the sale. Just as the book is safely locked in Jeck's safe Carrington suffers a stroke of paralysis.

However someone else has discovered the book and this is none other than Horatio Silverthorne, also a curio collector and father of Iolanthe, who furnishes half the love story in the plot. The other half is Dirk Mattox, inventor of a noiseless typewriter platen. The green jade hand is wanted by Sadie Hippolyte, who has learned its worth from an absconding Chinese bank cashier whose death occurred in her rooming house in Cleveland.

Suspicion points first at one, then another and again two or three. There seems to be no reason why Luke McCracken a "railroad" crook, shouldn't pull the deal after his wallet has been stolen on his way from the penitentiary to Chicago, just to get even with the world; Maddox himself might even have killed the old dealer in order to secure the rare book, which is the price Silverthorne has asked in exchange for the hand of his daughter; the fellow who sold the jade hand to Jeck might have wanted the curio back. One might go on guessing.

The characters are clearly outlined and each seems to play an important part in the story. The reader accumulates a fund of underworld lore and also is more than interested in the solution of the case as told by Chief O'Toole to a gang of newspapermen and photographers in his office.

Tells of Notables in "Three Titans"

MICHAEL ANGELO'S life was spent in a richer setting, more colorful than either Rembrandt or Beethoven, according to Emil Ludwig who tells of these three famous men in his novel "Three Titans."

From 14 to 80 he lived under patrons but his superior talents lost him many friends, and jealousies and bickerings made him withdraw into himself, solitary and unhappy.

Rembrandt, no child prodigy, chose painting as a profession and made a good deal of money at it. When he died friendless and in poverty he had lived his life out, painted the pictures that were in him.

Beethoven was the most hapless of all, his life one of tragic frustration. He could not hear his own music, had no social graces and was denied the companionships he so desperately needed. He died in poverty, and the London Philharmonic society paid for his funeral.

Arabian Nights Tale in "Water and Gold"

THE stories of Arabian Nights are no stranger than the career of Charles Hedlund, retired adventurer and New Jersey machinist, told in "Water and Gold" published last month by Dutton's.

His boyhood was spent in an orphan's home in Stockholm, where he was bound out as a cobbler's apprentice and later to a farmer. He ran away, was returned to the home and for punishment was apprenticed to a chimney sweep. He ran away, this time to sea and in his voyages he saw the world.

He was shipwrecked on strange coasts where he was welcome and unwelcome according to the type of local receiving committee; was shipwrecked in the Straits of Magellan and cast up among cannibals; was shanghaied twice, sailed a fever ship from the Argentine to Cardiff with no crew but the captain; saw and actively participated in mutinies, lived through typhoons and on through an endless chain of events. Today he is a citizen of Florence, N. J., the head of a happy family.

"Pied Piper" Is Colorful Story

"PIED PIPER" is a story of tragic manifestation of medieval ignorance and fanaticism by Daphne Muir, herself the daughter of a former Administrator of Cape Province. She portrays in colorful tones the Crusade of the Children, a dark record of brutal betrayal and innocent suffering. Against this strange background of medieval mysticism she projects the intensely beautiful story of Charla and Stephen and the half-legendary figure of the Prince of the Assassins, the Old Man of the Mountain. She uses no artificial devices to exact the pity of her readers in a tale, that, in all conscience is pathetic enough; instead she simply goes about the business of telling her story, telling it with a moving spotlight which travels from the hills of the Rhine and the purple vineyards of France to the Holy Land and even to the exotic and almost mythical city of Bagdad. Her descriptions are bright with the colorful imagery of an artist whose effects are seldom in paste; her pages are not without their philosophical implications and she tells an exciting and dramatic story which carries her readers afar both in time and space.

"Singing Seaman" Story of Trojans

"SINGING SEAMEN" by Helen Coale Crew tells the story of Virgil's 'Aeneid" for young people just as "The Trojan Boy" and "The Lost King" recounted the stories of the Iliad and the Odyssey for the boys and girls of today. The whole world is now celebrating the two-thousandth anniversary of Virgil's birth. The story of "Singing Seamen" centers about the three Trojan youths, Ascanius, son of Aeneas, young Prism and Atys. All the thrilling experiences that befell the wandering Trojans until the day that they stood on the site of the future city of Rome are vividly told by this entertaining author.
